Student name: Navjot Singh Virk, x13112406

Programme: BSc. Honours in Computing (Software Development)

Month: March 2017

Introduction

One of the best months while doing this project was February, now looking forward to march as another opportunity to do a lot of work on the project.

My Achievements

This month I was able to start doing user testing on the college students, friends and colleges at part-time work to get their views on the application and I also carried out heuristic evaluation on the application using the knowledge learned from the final year module Usability design in order to make sure the application's usability is up-to the mark and it does not violate the recognised usability design principles because the users crave a good gui which is easy to use and understand and easy to navigate. On the coding part, I am working with Geo location notifications, navigation bit of the application.

My Reflection

A good month, a lot of work done but a lower pace than previous month because I have also been busy doing assignments, projects, CA's for other modules as well which are important and require a lot of learning time.

Supervisor Meeting

Supervisor: Cristina Hava Muntean

Yet to meet next week.
